

Sandra Ngulube is an accomplished education professional with a Diploma in Social Studies and a Bachelor's degree in Education Administration and Management. She served at Chance4All from 2019 to February 2026 in progressive roles as a volunteer, subject teacher, and Project Manager, where she contributed to educational development and community-based initiatives. Through Chance4All, she also earned the opportunity to study at the University of Zambia, further strengthening her academic and professional foundation.

Currently serving under the Ministry of Education as a subject teacher, Sandra brings a wealth of classroom experience and a deep commitment to learner development. Her work has been shaped by a strong belief in the transformative power of education and the vital role of charitable organizations in restoring hope and changing lives.

Sandra aspires to establish her own school and provide scholarships to deserving students, continuing the legacy of impact and empowerment that shaped her journey.
