

Florence Dancoisne

My name is Florence Dancoisne, I am a French citizen living near Paris, and a mother of 3 children (27 years-old son, 25 years-old daughter and 16 years-old daughter). After my Business school in Paris, I joined Unilever in 1990 as Product Manager in Cosmetics then Marketing Director for several Designer Fragrance brands. I worked at Unilever 15 years before creating in 2010 a European business unit in Paris for KNOLL PACKAGING, Packaging manufacturer, an office which I manage with an amazing team of 10 people.

In Spring 2018, me and my youngest daughter visited my childhood friend Veronique Catany, cofounder of Chance4all in Zambia. We had the chance to meet the Chance4all team and their facility in Lusaka. There I understood the importance of their actions towards the children's education and the local community and decided to sponsor the education of a young boy Ives, met in Lusaka and who my family supports since then.

My company also participated financially in December 2020 with food relief to 250 vulnerable families within the Bauleni community.

I am very honored to become a member of the Advisory Council as I wish to do more for the Chance4all association and inspire others around me to do so as well. With the objective to give these children access to education and an opportunity for a better future, I wish to help to develop more sponsorships from Europe and grow significantly European companies' donations.
