

Géraldine Simonnet

A French and US national, Géraldine Simonnet has devoted her career of 20+ years to the field of education – including education policy, project management, research, disability inclusion, curriculum design, and teaching. Géraldine has worked for educational institutions, non-profits and international organizations, including in the United States, Africa, South America, and the Caribbean. She is currently an adjunct lecturer at the Department of French and Francophone Studies and an Online Curriculum Adviser at Georgetown University in Washington D.C. where she resides with her family.